Student Body Is Headed By Lighsey

Clemson's student body has been governed since 1949 by the constitution adopted by the students in March of that year.

The form of student government is a three branch system modeled after the national government system. It differs from the national system by having only one house.

The executive branch or administrative branch, judiciary branch, and legislative or assembly of student representatives make up the three branches.

The executive committee is made up of the vice-president of the student body and the four class presidents.

The judiciary branch or senior council is made up of nine members, seven elected members and two ex officio members (vice-president of the senior class and the highest ranking cadet officer).

The duty of the judiciary branch is to serve as a court for the violation of student laws. The constitution says, "It shall be the duty of the senior council to recommend to the president of the college punishment of any student for conduct that would tend to bring discredit upon the student body of Clemson or upon the college."

The legislative branch, or assembly of student representatives, is made up of thirty-two members, three elected from each class, plus twenty elected by the council of club presidents.

Harry M. Lightsey, agriculture junior of Columbia, is president of the student body for the 1951-52 school year. Ray Bell, education senior of Pelzer, is student body vice-president.

Senior council members elected last Spring are: Bobby L. Hugley of McCormick, James K. Alexander of Bishopville, Kenneth L. Huggins of Mullins, and Louis M. Stephens of Canton, North Carolina.

Also, David H. Burley of Clemson, Jack Lunn of Florence, and Elton C. Sease of Columbia.

Wednesday night is set aside as "church night" at Clemson. No other meetings are planned for this night, and each student is urged to attend the meetings of the student organization of the church of his choice.

The three major religious faiths are all represented at Clemson. There are seven churches here—Baptist, Lutheran, Presbyterian, Methodist, Episcopal, Wesleyan Methodist, and Catholic. The Jewish students are organized in the Hillel-Brandeis Club.

The Rev. M. C. Allen is pastor of the Clemson Baptist Church. Mr. J. L. Spangenberg is minister to students. The facilities of the church and the services of the staff are available for the use of the students. The Baptist Student Union, which meets every Wednesday night at 7:00, is the coordinator of all Baptist student activities promoted by the church. Each Sunday, church school is held at 10:00 a. m. and the worship service at 11:00 a. m.

The Rev. Enoch Stockman is pastor of the Lutheran Church. The Lutheran Student Association, which has been active on the Clemson campus for more than twenty years, meets every Wednesday evening at 7:00 o'clock.

The Rev. J. Claude Evans is pastor of the Clemson Methodist Church. The Wesley Foundation is the student organization of which every Methodist student is a member. The Foundation meets every Wednesday at 6:45 p. m. for Mid-Week Retreat. Church school is held at 10:30 each Sunday morning and the worship service is at 11:30.

Dr. S. J. L. Crouch is minister of the Presbyterian Church. The Presbyterian Student Association meets each Wednesday night at 7:00 o'clock. On Sunday, church school is held at 10:15 a. m. and the morning worship service is at 11:30.

The Rev. Emmet Gribbin is chaplain of the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church. Every Episcopal student is eligible for membership in the Canterbury Club, which meets each Wednesday at 6:45 p. m. Holy Communion is held each Sunday at 8:30 a. m. and worship service is at 11:30.

The Rev. G. I. Norman is pastor of the Wesleyan Methodist Church, which is located on the Greenville Highway.

The Rev. V. J. Sampietro is chaplain of the St. Andrews Catholic Church. The Newman Club, an organization for all Catholic students, meets every Wednesday night at 7:00 o'clock in Newman Hall, which was constructed by the students themselves with technical assistance from men in the community. Masses are held at 9:00 a. m. and 10:00 a. m. each Sunday. Daily mass is held at 7:30 a. m.

The Hillel-Brandeis Club is open to all Jewish students enrolled at Clemson. Meetings are held each Wednesday at 7:00 p. m. The club sponsors religious services for students on Friday nights.

The Barracks Chapel, room 1-142, has been set aside by the college administration for worship and meditation by individuals and small groups. The Chapel is open at all hours for religious meditation.

The cadet chaplain at Clemson is a cadet staff officer. Cadet Captain William S. Shuler, vocational agricultural education senior of Sumter, is cadet chaplain for the 1951-52 school year.

Military History Of Clemson Is Related

One of the things that is always slightly confusing to new cadets at Clemson is the relationship between the Reserve Officers' Training Corps and Clemson as a Military College. Part of the confusion can be removed with a bit of history concerning the organization of Clemson.

The Corps of Cadets was organized when Clemson was founded as a Military College. However, it was not until 1921 that a federal statute provided for the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. All members of the Clemson Corps of Cadets are not members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, since certain academic and physical requirements must be met to enjoy membership. Thus, it must be remembered that while all cadets participating in military training, all members of the Corps are not necessarily members of the ROTC.

It is interesting to note that of the eight military colleges in the United States, six of the eight are

Clemson's Unwritten Laws

Freshmen Offered Faculty Guidance

A formal systematic program for student counseling was started in September of last year. The program is designed especially for freshmen and sophomores.

The program, in brief, is as follows: The dean of each school, in collaboration with the registrar, selects from the faculty a group of counselors. Each counselor guides and counsels not more than twenty freshmen, all of whom take the same major course.

The counselors assist with the orientation and placement-test program, assists the class adviser with registration procedures, tries to win the respect and confidence of the student and make him feel that there is someone to whom he is free to go for advice and talk things over, and seeks the cooperation of instructors or others when necessary.

In addition, he seeks to advise and counsel with the student in regard to choice of major course, ineffective study habits, budgeting study time, scholastic motivation, and deficiency in a particular subject. Also, the counselor tries to help the student with personal problems such as social maladjustments, family conflicts, student discipline, health problems, and financial problems.

The method of handling his group of students is left to the discretion of the counselor, but it is suggested that in addition to meeting the student individually, at least three meetings of the entire group be held during the semester.

- A Clemson Man:
1. Speaks to every person on campus at every opportunity.
 2. Leaves the door open while in another cadet's room if occupants are out.
 3. Leaves a note when he borrows something from another's room.
 4. Never makes rude, insulting or uncalled-for remarks at girls passing the barracks, and stays away from the - windows when not fully dressed.

5. Learns the college songs and yells as soon as possible.
 6. Thanks the driver who has given him a lift and offers to help the driver if he has trouble while the cadet is with him.
 7. Takes his place at the end of the bumming line.
 8. Never razzes a referee or umpire.
 9. Pays his debts.
 10. Is always honest in the classroom.

The Tiger Started In 1907; Published Continually Since

THE TIGER was begun in the spring of 1907 by a group of energetic students that included Mr. A. B. Taylor and Professor S. R. Rhodes. Later Rhodes became editor and Taylor business manager of the first TIGER.

Positions on the staff are manned by men who have enough printer's ink in their blood to make them volunteer for the many diversified jobs open on the paper. Students write news and features, sell advertising, and circulate the paper to its many subscribers entirely without compensation.

That the staffs down through the years have done exceptional work is evidenced by the many awards the paper has won. Three times it has won the coveted All-American rating of the Associated Collegiate Press, and for three consecutive years, in competition open to the South Carolina Press Association, it was awarded the all-state Wilton E. Hall trophy for the best college newspaper of South Carolina. This award, offered by the Anderson publisher, has now become the permanent possession of THE TIGER.

This map, although designed primarily for parking information, may be used as a guide to the campus.

Choose Friends Carefully

Socrates said, "Be slow to fall into friendship; but when thou art in continue firm and constant."

This might be a good rule for new Clemson students to follow. Although many cherished and lasting friendships are formed during college years, one should not be too hasty in choosing friends.

Too often when we choose friends in a haphazard way, we get in with the wrong crowd and are not able to resist the temptations and bad influences. We seldom realize how much influence the lives of other people have on our own.

Most of us follow the crowd, without thinking of the possible results. We may be following the wrong crowd.

Create friendships which will make your lives more complete. Moral and spiritual honesty of new friends insure the success of your friendships. Remember the choice is ours. Delille said, "Chance makes our parents, but choice makes our friends."

Freshmen Counseling Program

Last September a systematic program for student counseling was started for the first time at Clemson.

Realizing that the transition from high school to college often brings about both personal and scholastic problems, the Board of Deans and Directors instituted the plan which is now in effect at Clemson.

One counselor is assigned twenty new students, all majoring in the same course. The counselor will continue to assist the students through their sophomore year.

With the interest and support of the students, the counseling program should be of tremendous value to both the students and the college.

Don't Forget Moral Training

Another September has rolled around. And with each September comes school. This is the first taste of college life for most of you freshmen. Being in contact with the atmosphere which is present in all institutions of higher learning, you will be subjected to many temptations and vices.

At your homes most of you have been accustomed to going to church on Sundays and following your parents' wishes. However, at college there will be no parents or guardians to guide you. There will seem to be only those who wish to lead you astray.

Many of you will learn to smoke and drink for the first time while at college. These and other habits will be only the beginning.

For the first time you will be away from home for a long period of time. Homesickness may strike some of you. You should be aware of these temptations if this happens to you.

Participate in extra-curricular activities; follow the intra-mural program and the inter-collegiate sports with interest.

The ministers and their assistants are here to help you. Visit them often; take an active part in the various church programs.

But above all keep your self-pride high. Don't stoop to things which you wouldn't do at home. Keep your morals and the Clemson tradition always before you.

Clemson College Parking Regulations

The following Parking Regulations are publishing for the information and guidance of all concerned. Revision of these regulations will be made only on approval of the College President.

21. a. AUTOMOBILE REGISTRATION—General—College employees and students are required to register their cars in the Commandant's Office. This registration will be completed within 72 hours after class registration has terminated and the registration stickers displayed on the windshields immediately thereafter. For those individuals who desire to bring cars on the campus after registration has terminated shall first obtain a parking permit from the Commandant's Office and have the assigned Registration Sticker on the windshield at the time the car is brought on the campus. Students bringing cars on the campus for a period of less than 48 hours, will report the presence of the car and the license number to the Commandant's Office.

b. New license plate numbers shall be registered with the Commandant's Office within 72 hours of the receipt of these plates. Failure to make this report will constitute a violation of the parking regulations.

c. The college employee and student Registration Stickers will be distinctive in color. The color scheme will be changed at the beginning of each school year.

d. Disabled Students—Those students found by the College Surgeon to be physically unable to walk from one building to another to attend classes, will be given an employees Registration Sticker and are authorized to park in the area reserved for employees.

e. Wives of students who are employed by the College will be given special parking stickers.

2. ENFORCEMENT—These Parking Regulations will be enforced by officials appointed by the College President.

3. OFF-LIMITS—a. General—Those spaces adjacent to street curbs painted yellow are designated as "NO PARKING" areas and are off-limits for parking to all persons at all times.

b. To Students—The following areas are off-limits to students for parking:

(1) Between the hours of 7:30 a. m. and 5:15 p. m., daily, those parking areas reserved for visitors and college employees.

(2) The Small Parade ground, the area in front and in rear of Barracks No. 1 and Barracks No. 2, and the quadrangle formed by Barracks Numbers 4, 5, 6, and 7 at all times.

4. PARKING AREAS—a. General—Parking areas for employees, visitors and students will be marked as described below and will be used only by those for whom intended.

b. Employees—(1) General—A parking area will be reserved in the vicinity of the building in which the employee is employed.

(2) Marking—Parking areas and spaces for employees will be marked with signs and/or the street curb will be painted white. Students shall check maps posted on student bulletin boards showing areas authorized for student parking.

(3) Reserved Spaces—a. Tillman Hall—Parking spaces will be reserved and "RESERVED-ADMINISTRATION" will be stenciled on the street curb in 3" letters. Two parking spaces will be reserved for visitors.

b. Chemistry, Education and Textile Buildings, Long and Riggs Halls—Two parking spaces will be reserved and "RESERVED-ADMINISTRATION" will be stenciled on the street curb in 3" letters.

c. (1) General—One parking space in front of each building used for instructional purposes will be reserved for use by visitors.

(2) Markings—The curb adjacent to the visitors parking spaces will be painted white and the word "VISITORS" stenciled thereon in 3" letters.

d. Post Office Area—The parking area in front of the post office is available to students and employees. However, overnight parking is prohibited. The area in which the curbing is parallel to the front of the post office is restricted to 10 minute parking.

e. Students—(1) General—Students are authorized to park in any parking space between the hours of 5:30 p. m. and 7:30 a. m. with the exception of the post office parking area. Overnight parking being prohibited there.

(2) Markings—Authorized student parking lots will be marked with signs.

(2) Barracks students will not use their cars to attend classes.

5. VIOLATIONS—a. Employees—Employees violating these Parking Regulations are subject to a fine not to exceed ten dollars ($10.00).

b. Students—The Commandant's Office will maintain a disciplinary record on each student and reports of violation of Parking Regulations forwarded to that office to be made of record. Upon receipt of a reported violation of these regulations, the Commandant will notify the student concerned by memorandum. Any student violating the Parking Regulations a second time in any semester because of parking violations will be placed on probation and will not be permitted to park his car on the campus for the duration of that semester. Any student violating this period of probation by parking his car on the campus after having been told not to do so, may be suspended or required to withdraw from college. Violations by students during the last two weeks of a semester will be carried over and posted for the next semester.

c. Fire Hydrant—Any person parking in such manner as to block access to a fire hydrant or within ten feet of a hydrant will be subject to civil action.

d. Notices—Violations by students will be reported to their parents or guardians.

Gags From Other College Rags

By ESKAY

Not being used to the type of humor that should go into a humor column in a newspaper for college students (I almost said "men"), I shall try to put out some stuff that is half funny and half dirty. Bear with me please in my debut as a gag writer.

"He kissed her on her rosy lips. How could he then but linger. But when he caressed her long brown hair, A cootie bit his finger."

—Second Barracks Latrine

Then there was the girl who went out with the president of the Schick Company and wound up with a little shaver.

—Quickie

She: "Are you playing Santa Claus?"
He: "No, why?"
She: "Then leave my stocking alone."

—North Pole Courier

She wore a black garter, in memory of those who had passed beyond.

—Quicker Quickie

In Boccaccio, it's frankness. In Rabellas, it's life. In a professor, it's clever. In the TIGER, it's smutty.

The Shaft

There was a young lady from Lynn

Who thought that to love was a sin,

But when she was tight

It seemed quite all right,

So everyone filled her with gin.

Weather report—It's so dry in Kansas, according to latest reports, that trees are going to the dogs.

Well, I can't see why you're laughing at these stupid things. Thank goodness this is only a one night stand for me.

Attention Freshmen: One of you can be author of this column. A joke writer (formally called Exchange Editor) is badly needed by this paper. Drop down to the TIGER office any Monday or Tuesday night after 7 p. m. and we'll put you right to work.

Don't Get Me Wrong But . . .

By STAN KOHN

Don't Cut Classes

Somewhere else in this rag you'll find a copy of the Class Attendance Regulations. It's all there in black and white for you to wade through. Take every word of it seriously. You can get thrown out of school before you realize it if you start cutting classes. Here's how.

As freshmen you are allowed two cuts per semester in every three credit (or more) course you're taking. In all courses less than three credits you're only allowed one cut. For any additional cut you will be dropped from the course by the class attendance officer.

Now, don't think that this is rough. The class attendance officer isn't up there to keep you on the straight and narrow. You've got to do that yourself. He's there to count the number of times you get off that path, and believe me, you can get bounced out of Clemson College a lot sooner than you'd ever imagine just by cutting classes.

If, because of class cuts, you are dropped from so many courses that you aren't taking twelve credits, then the wheels really go into action and out you go, home to mom.

Class cuts are for emergency purposes. If at all possible they should be closely guarded for you can never tell when you're gonna get sick or something will come up that will keep you from a class. The safest and surest way is to not be absent from classes.

Watch How You Park That Crate

Whether it be a Model A or a 51 Caddy, Red the Cop is gonna pin a ticket on it if it's parked in the wrong place. This community doesn't charge you money, either. You take it out in trade—demerits.

Look through this paper and find that parking map. If you own a car, you'd best save that map for future reference. Here's what will happen if you don't:

You pull up in front of a fire plug and park your Super Chief and wham—you get a juicy summons to appear in the civil court. You don't get the demerits this time. You pay a fine. Money. And to top it all off, you get credited on the Commandant's scoreboard with a parking violation.

Now for the payoff. You rack up two violations (for money or demerits) and you have to move the buggy right off the campus. Then it won't even do you any good to have a car. You can't even bring it on campus. And should you still bring your car on campus, the big boys will throw both you and your flivver off campus for good—no matter how much influence dad has with the sheriff of Pohunk County.

Seriously, fellows, it's going to pay you off in the long run to watch where you park. I know, you see. I racked up demerits on my car last year to the extent that I had a free conference with the colonel.

Join the Army and Fight

Sure, the kids back home call you a draft dodger and all sorts of rot. But you aren't because before the school year is out you'll have to make a choice in which branch of the service you would like to have your ROTC training.

Me, I'm an Infantryman. There's nothing better if you want to be an army man. Believe me, if you're going into a ground unit, either go first class or go Air Force. Let's not have any of this half way stuff like QM or Ordnance. If you're gonna go to war, go to fight, not count blankets or test Eversharp pencils in an air-conditioned office.

Think it over. Begin now to pay attention to every bit of Military Science that passes before your eyes. It all centers around the fighting man—the guy in the infantry. One unit specializes in making clothes for the fighting man, another in weapons for the fighting man, another in transporting the fighting man, and still others in feeding that fighting man. Be the fighting man that gets all the service.

Southern Scandal

Drunks, Drunkards, and Alcohol. It all adds up to a shipping offense. Get drunk and home you go. Aside from all this, I'm trying to get to you before some wild sophomores do.

I'm not of the Temperance Union (my friends will back me up). Nor am I a prohibitionist. But I don't see any darn sense in a bunch of college kids, still wet behind the ears from four years of fluffy high schooling, getting drunk at dances and football games.

Only reason I'm writing this now is that it doesn't hit home when there are a bunch of upperclassmen around making with the horse laff. You're getting a chance now to see it in the plain white light. If you can honestly think up one good excuse for drinking at Clemson dances and parties and football games, then go ahead and get drunk. And get caught, too.

So You Think You Got Trouble

I Remember When

Once upon a time things were rough at Clemson. I know. I was here then, too. Seems like there was a fad then in colleges to have compulsory P.T. (That's a polite name for physical training, which is formal for "exercise".) And those were the days when cadets didn't wear a summer uniform. We started school in September with wool pants and white shirts. First week of school and we were in the heat of day doing push ups.

Every morning we'd have our daily goldbrick session on the small parade ground. And then it got cold. We still had P.T. I remember the day that you had to scrape the snow off the ground so you could get down to push up. Oh, those were the days.

Once Around the Flag Pole

A dying tradition at Clemson is the Flag Pole sprint that freshmen are required to take every time the strains of Tiger Rag reach their ears. I remember that fateful rainy night that a football pep rally was held in the college chapel. The band broke into that soulful song and 900 scrambling freshmen slid over those slick-in-dry-weather steps, hopped over those parking prohibiting poles and collided with Clemson's traditional flag pole. And you think you've got troubles?

And there was another tune the band used to play (which has since been removed from their repertoire) that would even cause freshmen to break ranks at parades and head for the flag pole. It was something about the "monkey" wrapping his tail around the flag pole.

But those days are gone forever. Also gone are the days of dysentery at the greasy spoon. That was when the cadets didn't get a meal for weeks on end. Mess hall people seemed to get some sadistic pleasure out of putting the seven o'clock breakfast on the table at five-fifteen.

I Remember Mama

Those were the days of "real" first sergeants. There was a particular one, five by five with a booming voice that dimmed the lights in Riggs Hall, named Lucas. When he hollered for H Company to go—we went. Latest rumor is that first sergeants are gonna have monitors to run down the hall and get the "kids" out to formations.

And company commanders used to be big square-shouldered seniors with enough keys on their key chain to hold the U. S. S. Missouri at anchor. When those guys wanted something done, it was usually done—without any threat of demerits.

Seniors Were Seniors

You won't have to worry your little shaved heads about this one for quite some time. Senior privileges were something then. There was nothing a senior couldn't do or have done. And there were some things that even seniors couldn't do, perform miracles.

Now a senior is someone that has been at Clemson for 31-2 years and is struggling with a 24 credit load so rough that he hasn't got time to do anything special. Usually he has a rough enough time just getting by his courses without having to have special privileges.

The senior privilege of leaving the mess hall early was adopted for the express purpose of allowing seniors to get back to their books as soon as possible. This was later overshadowed by a rush on the post office which is led by eager seniors.

Have I Lost You?

I guess I've been rambling on and haven't really gotten to the point. If there can be any sense in making sense I'll be the first to do it right here and now.

Clemson will really do things for you though. Things that it's been doing for students for a long time. Some graduate with limps, pushed in noses, and even faller arches (those are the military boys). Clemson has done a lot for me. Just last week I was offered a job with a big publishing firm. I was gonna pre-test text books. I'd read the text book and then take a test.

But enough of this drivel. I won't be able to write for this rag any more when the upperclassmen get here. You see, this column is run once a year for the freshmen to scare hang out of them. After 5 years at Clemson you might end up just like me.

Clemson College Class Attendance Regulations

The President's Council of the Deans and Directors has adopted the following class attendance regulations.

1. A student's first duty in college is his class work. Except for special reasons, a student is expected to be in every class on schedule. However, the college recognizes several justifiable reasons for class absences and authorizes absences in such instances. In addition, restricted provision is made for personal emergencies. Rigid penalties are provided for the abuse of these regulations.

2. Absence from class for any of the following reasons will be recorded as authorized, provided the absence is approved by the Class Attendance Officer. The Class Attendance Officer will approve class absences only when the required action as shown opposite the reason below has been taken. Except in cases of extreme personal emergency, students who absent themselves from class prior to authorized permission, will have their absences recorded as unauthorized, even though otherwise authorized.

Reason

- Sickness
- Guard Duty
- Official representation in inter-collegiate athletic events.
- Educational Trips
- Participation in other activities considered to be official and authorized by the Deans and Directors.
- Personal emergencies of a serious nature such as death or serious illness in the family

Required Action for Approval of Absence

- Absence certified by the College Surgeon on the hospital report or by another doctor and endorsed by the College Surgeon.
- Absence certified by the Commandant.
- Absence certified by the Head Coach.
- Absence certified by the Dean of the school concerned.
- Absence certified by the faculty sponsor of the activity.
- Approved by the Commandant for Cadets or by the Class Attendance Officer for Non-Cadet students.

3. The Commandant or a member of his staff designated by him shall act as Class Attendance Officer. All absences, authorized and unauthorized, will be recorded by the Class Attendance Officer. Absence from class for any reason, except those approved in advance by the Class Attendance Officer or those excused because of conditions of extreme personal emergency, will be recorded as unauthorized. It will be the responsibility of the student to report to the Class Attendance Officer immediately for explanation of those cases when the student absents himself from class under conditions of extreme personal emergency not authorized in advance. Otherwise, such absences will be presumed to be unauthorized and will be so recorded.

4. Absentee reports will be submitted daily, on the form provided, to the Class Attendance Officer by each instructor through his Dean. All absences, authorized and unauthorized, will be reported. It will be the instructor's responsibility to determine whether or not a student is absent or late.

5. Students shall not request instructors to excuse them from class or to change class periods or examinations. Instructors have no authority to grant such requests.

6. All class work missed on account of authorized absences shall be made up to the satisfaction of the instructor concerned. Instructors will not be obligated to permit a student to make up any work missed during unauthorized absences. If the unauthorized absence is from a previously announced quiz or examination, the student will not be permitted to make up that work and will be given a grade of zero for that assignment.

7. To provide for personal emergencies, Freshmen and students enrolled in 100 series courses will not be penalized for two unexcused absences per semester in each subject of three credit hours or more, and one in the case of subjects of less than three credit hours. For any additional unauthorized absences, such students will be dropped from the subject concerned by the Class Attendance Officer. Absences from non-credit courses will be treated as absences from credit courses of a like number of hours. Any freshman who is absent from more than the equivalent of four week's work, whether the absences are excused or unexcused, will be dropped from the subject unless his continuance is authorized by his dean within one week after notification.

8. In the event that a student classified as Sophomore or higher is absent including, both authorized and unauthorized absences, from the equivalent of three weeks' work in a course during a regular semester or one and a half in a Summer Session, the dean of the School in which the student is majoring shall be notified by the Class Attendance Officer that such student is being dropped from the course concerned. If it is felt by the Dean that such action is undesirable, he shall notify the Class Attendance Officer to that effect within one week; otherwise the drop will remain in effect.

9. Any student who, by being dropped from one or more subjects on account of excessive absences, reduces his credit hour load below twelve semester credits, shall be suspended from college for at least the remainder of that semester. A student whose class attendance record is generally unsatisfactory may be required to withdraw from college at any time.

10. All students will keep their own records of class absences. No routine notices of accumulated absences or warning letters will be sent out or posted by the Class Attendance Officer. The College reserves the right to notify students' parents of unsatisfactory class attendance.

11. All students must turn in a completed class schedule on the prescribed form to the Commandant's Office at registration. All changes to this schedule must be reported promptly to the Class Attendance Officer.

12. Students who are absent from the campus because of sickness will report to the Class Attendance Officer at once upon their return to school in order that their attendance record may be verified and brought up to date.

What The Army Has To Offer College Students

By Col. F. E. Cookson

All cadets of the college are required to take military training. ROTC is compulsory for the first two years for the physically qualified students, unless they have completed the basic course at other schools or are veterans enrolled under Public Laws 16 or 346.

The Department of The Army maintains a Senior Division Unit of the ROTC at Clemson. The institution is classified by the Department of The Army as a Military College.

The mission of the Reserve Officers Training Corps is to produce junior officers who have qualities of leadership and attributes essential to their progressive and continued development as officers in the Army of the United States.

The Military Department at Clemson places emphasis upon leadership to assist Clemson men in meeting any situation in life with success and honor.

The Department of the Army maintains six branches at Clemson as follows: Armor, Infantry, Ordnance Corps, Corps of Engineers, Quartermaster Corps, and Signal Corps.

The ROTC at Clemson consists of two parts: the basic course (freshman and sophomore military science) and the advanced course (junior and senior military science). The basic course consists of two hours of scheduled classroom work, two hours of drill and one hour of inspection per week. The advanced course consists of four hours of scheduled classroom work, two hours of drill and one hour of inspection per week. For each semester basic ROTC training successfully completed, the student receives one credit hour and for each semester advanced ROTC successfully completed, the student receives three credit hours, all of which are counted as approved credits in the curricula toward a degree.

The first year basic army course is common for all freshmen. Before entering the second year basic course, the student must decide which branch he desires to continue in, in the Army ROTC. The student is permitted to select the ROTC course he desires consistent with his major course and established quotas for each service.

The Infantry (ROTC)

The mission of the Infantry is to close with the enemy by fire and maneuver in order to capture or destroy him; or to repel his assault by fire and close combat.

Infantrymen bear the terrific impact of battle. In no other service is there greater need for leadership, intelligence, technical skill, hardihood, and courage. In combat, man must still be master of the machine, for there the unusual is usual and the unexpected to be expected.

The mark of a man is on every Infantry soldier. Leading him into battle offers the young officer no greater challenge—no greater source of satisfaction. He is a man among men.

In the ultimate sense, leadership is not inherent; it depends upon traits which can be developed, and upon the application of techniques which can be learned. It is an art which can be acquired, cultivated, and practiced by anyone who possesses the mental and physical ability and the moral ethical integrity expected of a commissioned officer.

ARMOR

The Armor Branch or arm of service embraces not only tank units, but all of the arms and services, to include light aviation.

Upon receiving a commission in Armor you may be assigned to any of the branches represented in the armored division. Many armored officers have applied for and received training in light aviation, which is an integral part of the armored division.

Armored officers assigned to one of the two tank battalions of the airborne division may apply for jump training and upon successfully completing the jump training may remain assigned to the tank battalion and draw jump pay for the minimum number of jumps.

Many of the subcourses prescribed for armor include technical subjects that are widely used in civilian life as well as in the Army. The military training offered here at Clemson prepares you for civilian life as well as the Army. Most of our greatest civilian leaders today have had military training.

ARMY ENGINEERS

To most people, when the words "Army Engineers" are mentioned comes a vision of young men stripped to the waist, knee deep in mud, vigorously welding picks and shovels, building roads and bridges, engaged in quarrying or removing mines so that our combat troops may go forward to engage the enemy.

All of this is true—but space prohibits listing the other hard, dangerous tasks that Army Engineers are called upon to do in order to aid and further a successful campaign against the enemy.

But combat engineering is only a small part of the tasks that come to the Army Engineers. What are they? Listen! In the field of mechanical engineering, our young officers and brilliant enlisted men are engaged in developing and improving bulldozers, cranes, all types of earthmoving machinery, devising new and better mine detectors, blasting machines and hydro-electric machinery.

In the field of chemical engineering, our officers are with Dupont, aiding in the development of paints, plastic explosives; with Corning and Libby-Owen-Ford, devising new glass formulae; with U. S. Steel, Republic and Bethlehem Steel, and scores of other related research and development laboratories.

In the electrical engineering field, the Corps of Engineers are with the research and development laboratories of Edison, Westinghouse, General Electric and other like firms.

Architects are reminded that the Army Engineers built the Pentagon Building, Washington Monument, the U. S. Capitol Building, the U. S. Department of Agriculture Building, and scores of public and Army buildings and installations all the way from Washington, D. C., to such far-flung possessions as Guam, Hawaii, and Alaska.

SIGNAL CORPS

To wage a war successfully a modern Army must operate as an integrated hard striking team. Each unit must be perfectly controlled. Its action must be timed and coordinated precisely with the action of all other units in order that they be capable of lightning like attacks or countermeasures. This control is exercised by communications.

Back in 1863 Congress established the Signal Corps and gave it the responsibility of the Army's Signal Communications. Other responsibilities such as Meteorology and Photography were given to the Signal Corps as time went on. From its relatively simple system of signalling in 1863—flags by day

Chemistry Building Completed Recently

Clemson's new half-million dollar chemistry building was used for summer term classes for the first time since its completion.

The overall size of the building is 243 feet by 115 feet and contains 70,000 square feet of floor space. The north wing is two stories high; the south wing, due to the slope of the land and the basement and sub-basement, is five stories high.

The sub-basement is used for storage. The ground floor is devoted to freshman chemistry. Administrative offices, physical laboratory, advanced inorganic laboratory, and a small lecture room are located on the first floor.

The second floor is to be devoted to analytical work. The top floor will be used for organic chemistry.

The auditorium of the new chemistry building has a seating capacity of 500 and is semi-air conditioned. It is built without windows to facilitate the showing of films.

Other features of the building are a library, an elevator, and an air-conditioned balance room. The air conditioned balance is to be used in semi-micro and micro quantitative analysis.

New Hotel Provides Rooms For Visitors

The largest single addition to the campus in recent years has been the Clemson House. Completed last November after being under construction for almost a year, the new two-million dollar hotel has already furnished Clemson with a long felt need. Its 250 rooms provide apartments for many faculty members as well as transients and week-end guests. On the top floor of the eight-story structure is a luxurious penthouse, from which one can obtain a commanding view of the campus and the surrounding communities.

The Sabre Room, along with the Purple and the Gold Rooms, affords visitors and campus folk a perfect environment for a meal or banquet. The Iptay Tavern, open nightly except Thursday, serves short orders and plate lunches for those who desire snacks in a club-like atmosphere before and after dinner. A spacious lobby on the main floor is fast becoming the favorite meeting place of visitors to Clemson.

To enroll as a student in the Signal Corps ROTC unit a student must be pursuing a course leading to a degree in electrical engineering, electronics, or physics. However, students enrolled in courses other than these may be admitted if marked ability, aptitude or interest in technical fields of endeavor is demonstrated.

QUARTERMASTER CORPS
Quartermaster Corps cadets are instructed in the same subjects that are taught to officers in complete detail at the Quartermaster School, Fort Lee, Virginia. Quartermaster Cadets learn the principles of supply procedure affecting military units and organizations, military posts and depots. They are familiarized with accounting, purchasing and contracting, procurement, the market center system, commissary operations, research and development and the receipt, storage and issue of food, clothing, equipment and petroleum products.

neering building was recently completed here. The new building is complete with glass doors, radiant heat, and farm machinery display room.

The quarter-of-a-million dollar structure also has an auditorium with a seating capacity of 200, fluorescent lighting, and a tractor lab with an exhaust system built into the floor.

The building has 30,000 square feet of floor space.

Unlike most of the buildings on the campus, the Agricultural Engineering Building is heated by a separate heating plant. Because of the distance from the central heating plant and the cost involved, it was decided to employ a separate boiler. The boiler is oil-fired and radiant heating pipes are installed under the floor.

A vehicle storage shed was constructed separate from the new building. The storage shed has a gas pump with a 2,000 gallon capacity tank buried underground.
